LAW INTELLIGENCE.

VACATION-NEXT WEEK.

The General Term of the Superior Court has adjourned over till Saturday next, when some decisions will probably be given and one or two arguments theard It has been rumored that the Forrest case would be decided next week; but we understand from good anihority that it is at least doubtful. If our inormation be correct, Mr. and Mrs. Fr will wait, per force, till October for a final decision.

The Special Term of the same Court will be continued by Judge Hoffwan during the week; though he will hear to calendar osuses, with a single exception of one, which is set down for Tuesday, in which the Commissioners of Emigration are parties. Some heavy Commissioners of Pangration are parates. Some newly cases will be decided in the course of the week.

The Common Pleas will hold General Term during the month; and the Supreme Court will rapidly relapse into a sami torpid state—a single Judge holding mbers. Decisions will, however, be given at General Term on Tuesday.

The Parish Will case in the Surrogate's Court will o over, unfinished, till September.

The Marine Court has not yet announced its intentions formally-but vacation has practically commenced there already, not a Judge having been in attendance on Saturday.

THE PARISH WILL CASE.

Edward Delafield, further examined, says—I was bilged to urge Mr. Parish strongly before he would attempt to ritte his name il saw him try four or five times; a blackboard was dered for him to try on, but I have no recollection of it being sed; on the first of September succeeding the attack Dr. Markoc namenced the application of electro-magnetism to the paralyzed mbs; strychnine was given in dose of from one twetch to one athof a grain whout three times a day for several weeks. [Mr. Conor demanded that Mr. Delafield's books be produced.] I rious both to the profession and patient; I agree to subject a frameript from them to the Surrogate and counsel; I do not think a post-mortem examination would have settled the question of his coundness of mind; there is such a thing as the softening of the brain, growing out of apoplexy; cometimes, but not always, it impairs the intellect; when I addressed him he evitantly listened to me with intelligence, when I seeked aquestion newering it distinctly and clearly; when I seeked aquestion newering it distinctly and clearly; when I sooke to him on any subject requiring no answer, the look of intelligence with which he listened to me, the recognition of Individuals, and the evitantly greater pleasure with which he recognized certain old whends than in different persons; the continuance of the ordinary courtesies of life in which he failed as little for a considerable interaction.

homas flouse Taylor, sworn—I have been rester of Grace such for the last 22 years; have known Mr. Parish all that is have visited him in Barclay street and at his house in il Gate; I should say that he was a very even tempered person, and remarkably tenscious of purpose; I have known Mr. cish for the same time; they were my parishioners; on the of November, 1892. I was called to baptize Mr. Parish; I ad upon the third story; he speared a very feeble mm; I menteed a conversation with him upon the nature of the finance, to which he made no other reply than by howing his ad; the get eral impression of his face would indicate a lack intelligence; the muscles were rigid, apparently, and failed give expression to the countenance; at first I had say doubts to his intelligence, but upon repeated questions and constant quiescence, I thought it advisable to proceed with the service; on coming to the questions which are proposed to the candate in our office of baptism, Mr. Parish looked me full in the cs to the end of the question, and then bowed his head lowly acquiescence, and continued to do so until the end of the restions; he then relapsed into his former condition, hanging wan his head as a deeply afflicted man; but I was left in no rubt as to his understanding fally the nature of the vows he dascumed; had repeated interviews with him between the irid of November and the 30th of March, and would allude occasionally, but not a safinitely; on one was in February, 1859; tax lements were prepared on the table, and I supposed that he was his wish that I should now proceed to administer it, he re slied in a most affecting manner. "No, no," and then attempt on the restore with him the were prepared to the table, and I supposed that he was his wish that I should now proceed to administer it, he re slied in a most sanother time, he immediately selzed upon the suggestion, and resching out his hand, shook mine most cordially, nodding his head enphatically, to indicate that that was his wish.

Q. At this time what was the condition of the muscles, and the power of expression of his face? A. The muscles had regained their flavibility, and his face was as expressive as usual—as it ever has been; I was sent for again on the 50th of March to administer the communion; I expressed to Mr. Parish any hope that all difficulties which had prevented his receiving the secrement at the previous visit were now removed; he replied, "Yah, yah," in his emphatic way, nodding his head empaticulty, and smiled upon me in a pleasant way; I then inquired if it was his wish that we should now proceed with the secrement; to that he again replied by nodding his head and saying "Yee;" after which I administered the secrement to Mrs. Parish.

Q. What was his manner during the administration, in respect to responses, and how did he receive the elements!

A. His manner was very devout, great appearance of huntility of heart, and I think he would occasionally make a sound of acquiescence, where the answer should come in he received the bread in his left hand, applying it to his lips as any other communion, please state what the manner of the administration and reception of the secrament was?

A. His from any particular convernation that may have occurred at any one of these administrations of the communion, please state what the manner of the administration and reception of the secrament was?

A. Minfornly his manner was devout and humble in the externe, the utmest propriety of decorum and manifestation of feeling; he seemed to be always very much impressed with the solemity of the occasion.

Q. What persons annueled in the secrament? A. I have no recollection of other persons than Mrs. Parish and this faltaful domestic servant who was called Mary Ann, fig. Parish has himself requested that she might be called; he would do this by polating to the does an

Q. Did you attend upon Mr. Parish at the closing days of his life! A. I was with him about 9 o'clock of the night in which he d'ed he died at 4 o'clock the next morning, as I underwood; he was then in the agony of death.

Q. Describe his situation and what passed during that visit!

A. I found him breathing very heavily, with all the appearance of approaching dissolution; I spoke to nim, syrressing the hope that he knew me; he turned his head and gave me a nod of recognition, intimating that he knew who I was; he turned his head at my words very distinctly; I then remarked that I should be sorry to disturb him, but if you wish it i will make a short prayer; he again looked at me and nodded his head in sequiescence; during the prayer his heavy breathing was in a measure suppressed, and at its conclusion I took his hand, when he sensibly pressed mine, and I bid him adiev; I never saw him legain.

Q. Did anything occur upon any of these a bministrations of the communion in reference to communion aims or offerings! A. It was the uasge of Mr. Parish to make some contributions on these occasions to the communion fund of his church; on one secasion allusion had been made in our conversation to the claims which were thus pressing upon the fund; he humediately leoked toward Mrs. Parish, holding out his hand, when she replied, You wish to give the doctor something, when he replied, Yah, is his ureal way needing his head; he replied, Yer, yah, is his ureal way needing his head; the replied, Yer, yah, is han effectively be instantly beld out his hand leave some moments afterward he instantly beld out his hand leave some moments afterward he instantly beld out his hand leave some moments afterward he instantly beld out his hand leave some moments afterward he instantly beld out his hand; he receive the money; she, opening her hea, took out a significant of the money; she, opening her hea, took out a significant of the money; she, opening her bea, took out a significant of the money; she, opening her bea, took out a significant of the money; she, opening her bea, took out a significant of the money; she, opening her bea, took out a significant of the money; she, opening her bea, took out a significant of the money; she opening her bea, took out a significant of the money; she, opening her bea, took out a significant of the money; she opening her bea, took out a significant of the money; she opening her bea, took out a significant of the money of the money and the money her bear of the formation of the money had been dead to the significant of the money had been dead to the significant of the money had been dead to the significant of the money had been dead to the significant of the money had been dead to the money had been

No more testimony will be taken until the 22d of September, at 16 a. m.

SUPERIOR COURT—GENERAL TERM—JUNE 28—Present all the Judges but Judge Bosworth.

James S. Gibbons agt the Broadway Bank.

This action is brought for compensation for services sendered in setting up the Broadway Bank, procuring subscriptions, string time and influence to the project, &c—the understanding of the rarties at the time being, as is alleged, that when organized the plantiff was to become Cashier.

On the 15th of August the company breams a corporation by filing a certificate pursuant to the statute. Previous to that time, between some of the associates elected officers, but elected another gentleman as Cashier, and not Mr. Gibbons. A resolution was, however, passed, offering him the office of Teller, with a good salary, and full compensation in addition for his time and labor. This proposition was communicated to Mr. Gibbons; but so far from accepting it, he withdrew from the association, and by its leave the $50,000 in stock which he halp been instrumental in procuring was also withdrawn by himself and his friends.

Mr. Gibbons acted as Secretary in the early stages of the Association, and his minutes were, after its incorporation, entered in the bank-books.

On the triple a motion for a non-suit was denied and the case.

Mr Gibbons acted as Secretary in the early stages of the Association, and his minutes were, after its incorporation, entered in the bank-books.

On the trial, a motion for a non-suit was denied, and the case submitted to the Jury, subject to the decision of the Court as to whether the services in question were so adopted by the bankers as to render them obligatory upon it.

Held, That the services of Mr. Gibbons were rendered, without question, upon the consideration which forms the groundwork of the action; but that the whole Court had grave doubts whether this was a consideration which was valid or enforceable at law, or could be made so by a subsequent adoption on the yart of the Bank, or whether the incorporation into their minuce was such an adoption as to be binding upon them; but that, waiving these questions, the plaintiff is not entitled to recover under the resolution and the subsequent facts; that the offer made by the Bank to appoint eachier, and as an equivalent therefor; that this offer was reasonable and proper, and constituted a fair equivalent; that it would be unreasonable to hold the Bank bound after the plaintiff had not only declined their offer of an equivalent, but had, by the withdrawal of the testock which he had caused to be put in, withdrawn his benefit to the Bank. Judgment to be settled.

amount received by the California steamers.

The Anthracite Coal trade is kept up at the mines with considerable spirit, the tunnage by the three old lines reaching 131,227 tuns, something less than last week, but still a heavy business, and especially so by Reading and Lehigh. There were shipped by the Lehigh, for the week ending on Saturday last, 43,430 tuns, and for the season 338,290 tuns-thus gradually regaining what was lost by the late opening of the navigation.

The Schuylkill Navigation Company shows a falling off in tunnage, as compared with last week, of about 25 & cent. The tunnage for the week ending on Thursday last is but 34,027 tuns, and for the season to the same time 402,374 tuns, against 422,825 tuns to same time last year.

The Reading Railroad for the week ending on Thursday, reports the very large tunnage of 54,770 tuns, and for the season to the same time, 1,004,044 tuns, against 1,104,413 tuns to the same time last year—showing a loss of little over 100,000 tuns to corresponding time last year.
